Forecast For East Midlands
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Monday 18 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mainly fine at first, rain later. Very wet towards midweek.

Today:
Mainly fine at first, but cloudier in the Peak District with patchy rain here. Perhaps drier with some sunny spells developing more generally for a time into the afternoon, ahead of cloud and rain spreading northeast later. Remaining rather cold. Maximum temperature 7 deg C (45 deg F).

Tonight:
Soon becoming generally breezy, cloudy and wet, with the rain especially heavy and persistent in the north. Staying relatively mild and frost-free. Perhaps becoming drier in the south later. Minimum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Tuesday:
Potentially very wet, this more likely in the north, with persistent, occasionally heavy rain stalling over the region. Mild but rather windy. Perhaps periodically drier in the south. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Outlook for Wednesday to Friday:
Heavy, persistent rain likely continuing Wednesday. Notably colder Thursday, with a risk of gales and some snow, ahead of a brighter but colder end to the week with wintry showers.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.